[COMMUNICATED. ENVY .-- BY J. B. JOHNSON.

How foul is Exvy! and like a leprosy it essays to blight by its contamination, all that is good, lovely, and useful. It converts the bosom in which it dwells into a Sahara, whence it sends forth a typhon that is intended to destroy all save the offspring of its own morbid and unholy wishes. Self-conceit is its parent, and Indolence its nurse.— ington on the case.

Gold Hunting Anchor Lever, small size.

Gold Hunting Anchor Lever, small size.

The exorbitant value which the former sets upon its claims, and the extreme difficulty | Liverpool, No. 1104. of making that value current, give precedence to the loftier but less froward emotions of another, and by this triumph of a rival is London, No. 11765.

Silver Anchor Lever, by Henry Courvoisiers & occasioned the birth of Envy, which when fully grown becomes the most malign of moral diseases, and when once fastened upon the soul, renders it not only an infection to the body which it vivifies, but a pestilence to that superiority in others which it so much loathes, and so much desires to obscure.-Panoplied in the full armor of self-importance, it sneers at its neighbors; and should its snarls fail to injure its superiors, it repines in the sorest disappointment because they will prosper in spite of its determination to impede their steps towards success and usefulness.

No affection is more detestably inveterate: and notwithstanding it may be occasionally appeased by the kindly indifferent treatment of those against whom it is directed, it is sure to relapse again into all its virulency, and to manifest all its former malignity .-It works by cunning and deceit, and sows its vile seed among the generous acts of another, in order to rust and blight his well-carned harvest. It is the despoiler of public and social peace; and why some persons should spend the best moments of their lives in devising means to overthrow another's welfare, is difficult to expound and humiliating to contemplate.

Let those who are possessed of this infirmity, think, not only to what extent they injure the innecent, but also how much they debase themselves, and dishonor the name of man. Let them remember, that the will is its own effect, and makes good of evil or evil of good; and that when invidiously directed, acknowledges its own inferiority, and pays the highest compliment to the virtue needs not even Envy to indicate its worth, and, being occupied in the execution of pure designs, it is too noble in its attributes to stoop to mean competition and low jealousy. Those who would escape the infection of Envy must avoid the disgusting traits of petty pride and eschew the vice of indolence; for they beget it; and when once aroused, no emotion degrades an individual more, or occasions him less pleasure or more pain.— "Silver Star," and "Charles Ward," direct from occasions him less pleasure or more pain .-The invidious, too, are constantly digging pits for others, and fall therein themselves; and so intent are they upon obstructing the progress of their neighbors to prosperity. that they neglect their own welfare, and like dogs baying the moon, watch the onward steps of others, and lose golden opportunities of improving their own powers, and warranted to contain 8 per ct. of Ammonia, of treading the path which leads to the eminence which they so meanly covet, but have not the courage to strive to attain; for they perish by the wayside, filled to the last with bitterness by the sight of the advancement of those whom they would blast by a look. October 31, 1859.

THE CHILD AND THE TIGER .- The Courri- 200 cident, which took place a few days ago at the fair of Valenciennes, where, among oth er exhibitions for the amusement of the public, there was a menagerie of wild beasts. One of the children of a wine shop keeper, named Gambier, on approaching the counter, saw crouched under it an animal which looked at him very fixedly. "Papa," cried the child in alarm, "come here quickly; there is a large cat with a long tail and whiskers." Before, however, M. Gambier could come, the animal rose and took refuge behind some barrels, where it could better conceal itself. It was then discovered that the animal, instead of being a cat, was a tiger cub. In the meantime, the proprietor of the menagerie had discovered the escape of the animal, which, finding the door of its cage open, had walked quitely out and crossed the Place d'Armes unnoticed, although the place was Islands, in the "South Pacific Ocean," and is sold full of people. On being informed where genuine and pure as imported. It has been satisthe animal had taken refuge, the proprietor, provided with a cage and a large blanket, came to the place, and by means of a large stick the cub was compelled to quit its hid ing place. Although it had before been quiet it got savage when the man, throwing the blanket over its head, seized on it to put it into the cage. The animal then turned and gave him a severe bite in the hand.

SOUTHERN PROTECTION INSURANCE

The conditions of Insurance are framed with the

COMPANY, ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA. CAPITAL OVER 350,000 DOLLARS AND CONSTANTLY INCREASIN

The Charter of this Company offers more favora ble advantages to the farmer and others, than any Company chartered in the State, by insuring with or without a premium note. If the applicant prefer, he can pay the full amount of the premium in eash, or by effecting a cash insurance for two years, the insured saves one-eighth of the amount ne would otherwise have to pay; or by becoming a member, and giving a small premium note, the in sured saves nearly one-half of the amount charge. by Stock Companies, when insuring from year year. This is the advantage resulting from the combination of the CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE.

This Company commenced issuing Policies against loss or damage by fire, on the 15th day of March, 1854, since which time over seven themsand seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over seventy thou sand dollars have been paid for losses. Having increased our business during the past year, we led grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering prepects of future usefulness. The Directors hope and believe, that, by prudence, caution, and a rigid system of economy, they will establish for this Company a reputation for cheapness and afety not surpassed by any Company in the U. States. All differences in settlement of losses, may be determined by three disinterested arbitrators of the County where such loss happened, to be mutually chosen by the insured and the Company.
